SHOULD BE NOTHIN' DOIN'

Marshall Field & Co. have raised their ante. They now offer the people $5,000 a year for the tunnel under Washington street.

That tunnel at the present time would be worth at least $20,000 a year. In a few years, it might easily be worth $100,000 a year.

And, if a subway should be built, and the people should need the space and be unable to get it, it would mean an incalculable loss to the people every year.

The first Marshall Field offer for the tunnel was $3,400. Doubtless the ante was raised to give those aldermen, who, like Long,
